Dear Sir/Madam,

To whom this may concern,

The quality of our project was due in great part to Kemp Constructions Ltd's willingness to truly partner with myself, the project managers and the architects.

KCL took 'construction management' responsibility for the entire project, overseeing all aspects of the job and sub contractors. KCL demonstrated initiative and flexibility, resolving issues as they arose, embracing change and delivering on my expectations - expectations to be on time, within budget and to plan.

The construction site's 'feel' or temperament was exceptionally positive, very productive and fun. The team approach was never abandoned for expedience or any other reason, but was viewed by all as critical to the successful completion of work.

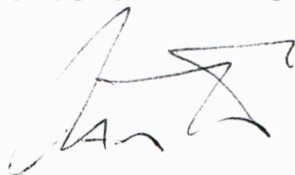

The project work ranged from significant structural work - with retaining walls and concrete slab construction, to fine carpentry - reproducing a heritage building in the colonial style, with traditional techniques to achieve a 'high finish'.

I attributed Kemp Construction's high finish, to organisational maturity, properly trained staff and a culture of taking pride in their work. To find carpentry of this standard is unusual and it is on the strength of this competence that Marty Kemp and his team won the contract originally.

The project was run using the 'open book' method, which demands accurate and timely record keeping, coupled with frequent and open dialogue. Kemp Construction ran this 'open book' process professionally which offered me the comfort of always knowing what was happening.

I would work with Kemp Construction on future projects. I cannot recommend them more highly and I am happy to provide a reference recommending them to others planning challenging projects needing a professional construction company.

Yours sincerely
